Kristie's Cakes

Cakes this time run the gamut - creatively simple to extremely detailed. The lion on the right was so cute - another of Kristie's cupcake creations. An ice-skate cake was in order for an ice-skating party. 2-D cutout cakes like this are a great way of incorporating a theme - without having to get into crazy construction. The "purse" below was actually a diaper bag for a baby shower. Covered with fondant and detailed with gold luster dust and applied with the straps, it looked just like the real thing. The 2 tier skull and crossbone cake was so creepy - just what was ordered for a 40th birthday. And lastly, it was not a cake - but the bride and groom couple was from the Lorraine McKay class that Kristie took. Check out Lorraine's website - www.lorraine-icingonthecake.co.uk/She does such amazing modeling work. She is from the UK and she was here in Austin this fall as a guest of the Capital Confectioners Club. It was a great class and details like the piping on the dress, the tartan and the facial expressions really make the figurines complete.

Enjoy looking at the cakes. Kristie is making more cakes right now - so there will be new cakes to look at next month!
