

Thank You
for hanging in there with us
and your support
through all of the changes that we have had to make for how to conduct classes!

This email details our plans going forward

- Our New Class Schedule
- Kits and Class Supplies
- Your Class Credits
- How to Sign-Up for and Access Classes

The Plan

As you know, we started off trying to reschedule in-person classes. Ultimately, because of our classroom space limitations to allow for social distancing, we have decided to migrate those classes and all classes to our new online platform until the end of the summer.

The Schedule and Kits

We have put together a schedule for our online classes. I think you will see that we have a very comprehensive listing of classes and are trying to continue with as many of our classes as possible. Each online class will have a window of time before and after the class date to pick-up the kit that accompanies the class. It has always been a priority for us to provide all of the tools and supplies for class - and the kits are put together with that in mind. There will be some basic items that you will need from home - such as bowls and spoons - but the kits include all ingredients and tools and supplies to complete the project. The online classes will also have a "live" time when the instructor will be monitoring the class, providing additional instruction and answering questions. The beauty of the online class though, is that if that exact time does not work for you, you can still complete the online portion at your convenience. We are recording the class segments and will have all recipes, instructions and videos available online at any time for people who are registered for the class.

Class Credits

All students that were registered have credit(s) with us for their class(es) You do not have to stay in the class you were originally registered for, you can choose any classes that you are interested in. Your credit can be applied to any of our online classes or saved and applied to any of our in-store classes once they (fingers crossed) come back in the fall.

How to Register

You register for classes by going to the Classes page at MakelItSweet.com, choosing the class and then use the code CV1920 when checking out to use your credit. You have to register for the class to reserve the kit that goes along with the class. Each class will have a supply list detailing what is included in the kit and a list of home essential tools to complete the class project.

How to Access Online Classes

Once registered, you will get a special link to the class that is hosted at www.MakelItSweetOnlineClassroom.com. (Be sure to include the www. part of the url to get to the correct website.) You go to that site and register with your name and email when visiting for the first time. You can go to the site to see the Mother's Day or Memorial Day classes that were done as examples of the online portion of the classes. The "Live" portion of the online class is done on Zoom and is available on all kinds of platforms. Zoom.us is free and makes it easy for our instructors to be able to interact with students while completing the class project.

And Finally...

I encourage you to give an online class a try. I have heard from many students who participated with our Mother's Day and Memorial Day classes that they loved the format and the kits. We are excited about this new way to offer classes. If online classes just don't work for you, we have options - we can just hold on to your credit and you can apply it when classes go back into the store or we can transfer the amount that you paid for class to a Make It Sweet gift card that you can use for in-store purchases or future class registration. Just think – this may finally be the chance for you to get into that French Macaron, Kolache, Empanadas or Pretzels class that has always sold out so quickly before!

We hope to see you online, in class or in the store sometime soon! We truly appreciate your understanding and support through these trying times.

Please let us know if you have any questions.
